Council response to the Scottish Government Consultation on Fireworks in Scotland

2. Executive Summary

- 2.1 The Scottish Government is gathering information and views on the use and regulation of fireworks in Scotland. The Council's response to the Consultation on Fireworks in Scotland (the consultation) is attached at Appendix 1.

3. Background

- 3.1 Instances have occurred where fireworks have been used dangerously and caused harm, including occasions where attacks on emergency service workers have been linked to fireworks. Fireworks, when not used safely or with respect to the wider community may cause nuisance, alarm and distress, and a small number of incidents have resulted in members of the public being injured by fireworks.
- 3.2 Following serious disturbances on 5 November 2017 and the subsequent local media coverage, some elected members raised their concerns with the both the UK Government at Westminster and the Scottish Government. Council Motions raised by elected members at the City of Edinburgh Council Meeting on 23 November 2017 and contained under item 12 in the Minutes of the meeting, were discharged by a report entitled Sale and Use of Fireworks presented at the Corporate Policy and Strategy Committee on 7 August 2018.

4. Main report

- 4.1 Legislation regulates the sale and use of fireworks, with controls placed on who can sell fireworks, who can buy fireworks, the types available to the public, how they must be stored and when and where they may be used. Legislation on the sale and storage of fireworks is reserved to the UK government. There are no current plans to review the regulations regarding the sale of fireworks.
- 4.2 Legislation covering the use of fireworks in Scotland is devolved to the Scottish Parliament and the Scottish Government is consulting on how fireworks are used and enjoyed. The consultation will help the Scottish Government identify gaps or issues with the current regulatory framework.
- 4.3 During Bonfire Night 2017, the misuse of fireworks caused substantial damage to property in the east of Edinburgh, while the north of the City experienced high levels of violence and antisocial behaviour. In response to these events, the Bonfire Community Improvement Partnership (Bonfire CIP); a multi-agency group, was established in January 2018 to develop a co-ordinated and consistent partnership response to resource planning for Bonfire Night, with a focus on keeping people safe.

- 4.4 The consultation response attached at Appendix 1 represents the views of the Council's trading standards, community safety, and public safety sectors, all of which are members of the multi-agency Bonfire CIP. The response also incorporates issues raised in the motions and amendments from elected members.

5. Next Steps

- 5.1 Following this Committee's approval, the Council will submit its formal response to the consultation to the Scottish Government by the consultation deadline of 13 May 2019.

6. Financial impact

- 6.1 There are no direct financial impact on the Council arising from this report; all costs are contained within existing budgets.

7. Stakeholder/Community Impact

- 7.1 The views expressed in the response to the consultation attached at Appendix 1 represent those of the Council's trading standards, community safety, and public safety sectors. The response also incorporates issues raised in the motions and amendments from elected members.
- 7.2 The consultation is open to the public and stakeholders to submit their respective responses.

8. Background reading/external references

- 8.1 Scottish Government overview of the consultation which includes links to the consultation paper and consultation technical annex.
- 8.2 A report submitted to the Corporate Policy and Strategy Committee on 7 August 2018 entitled Sale and Use of Fireworks, summarises the legislation and regulation on the sale and use of fireworks and provides a response to Council Motions raised by elected members at the City of Edinburgh Council Meeting on 23 November 2017 and contained under item 12 in the Minutes of the meeting.

A consultation on fireworks in Scotland: Your experiences, your ideas, your views

Ministerial Foreword

Many people in Scotland enjoy attending firework displays in a safe and responsible manner. Many of us will have attended and enjoyed fireworks at celebratory events – from locally organised displays in and around bonfire night through to the annual displays at the Edinburgh Festival and Tattoo.

However, ensuring fireworks are used safely and handled with care is essential to ensure they do not cause harm, distress, or serious injury. Every year, the hard work of our emergency services to tackle dangerous and anti-social behaviour associated with fireworks helps to reduce the number of incidents, particularly around bonfire night. However, every year there are still a number of concerning reports.

I would like to hear your views on how you use and enjoy fireworks, and the impact fireworks have on you and your community. I would like to hear your views and ideas on what action we can take to ensure fireworks continue to be enjoyed safely and responsibly.

Communities that are enabled to work together, alongside local partners, to identify issues and contribute to solutions are more likely to identify effective and sustainable ways forward that work for their local area. I would like to hear your thoughts and ideas about how we can make the most of the knowledge and experiences within our communities to support the safe and responsible use of fireworks.

While the sale of fireworks is an issue only the UK Government at Westminster can change, I will use the outcomes of this consultation to inform ongoing discussions about what changes are needed.

I very much welcome your views, thoughts and ideas and encourage you to get involved in this conversation.

Minister for Community Safety

Introduction

What this consultation is about

The Scottish Government is gathering information and views on the use and regulation of fireworks in Scotland. We want to hear your experiences and what you think about the way fireworks are currently used.

Fireworks are traditionally associated with festivities which celebrate events that are important to different communities across Scotland. These can include cultural events such as celebrating the new year; religious events such as the Hindu community celebrating Diwali; or family events such as celebrating a wedding or birthday. These events will often bring communities together and can be important in helping us to maintain our ties and friendships with people from our own community and those outside our community. Fireworks can bring colour and excitement to the special occasions that are important to us.

However, fireworks are potentially dangerous and need to be used safely and handled with care to avoid serious injury. For some, the noise made by setting off fireworks can be a nuisance, and the disturbance can cause distress to both people and animals.

While much of the current legislation on fireworks is reserved to Westminster the consultation will help to identify gaps, issues or unintended consequences with the current regulatory framework. We would like to hear any views you have on whether the regulations on the use of fireworks needs to be improved. (The term “regulations” means the laws which set out what people can and cannot do with fireworks.)

How do I get involved?

This consultation was launched on Sunday 3 February and will run until Monday 13 May 2019. You can submit a response at any time before the closing date. To give us your views, please click here <https://consult.gov.scot/safer-communities/fireworks>.

There are no restrictions on who can respond to the consultation. We would like to hear all experiences and views, both positive and negative, so that we can better understand both the importance and the impact of fireworks to different communities.

During the consultation we are running a series of public events across Scotland to allow anyone with an interest to come along and share views. You can find a list of events and details of how to book on our website (<https://consult.gov.scot/safer-communities/fireworks>). Both the written responses to the consultation and the views expressed at the consultation events will be used to inform any future actions.

Am I restricted to answering the questions in the consultation?

No, there are free text boxes in the consultation document which allow you to tell us anything that you believe is important. You do not need to answer all the questions - you can choose to only answer those questions you feel are relevant to you.

Part One: How are fireworks used in Scotland?

Fireworks are often associated with celebration and events that bring communities, friends and families together. These events can be formally organised by the local authority, a local community council or organised community group, but can also be set off in private spaces such as people's back gardens. Some of these celebrations are outlined here:

Diwali – celebrated in Autumn, it is one of the most significant festivals in the Indian culture and is celebrated by multiple religions including Hindus, Sikhs and Jains. Large, public firework displays are held which celebrate one of the Diwali legends, Rama and his wife Sita.

New Year – many countries around the world mark the beginning of a New Year on January 1st with fireworks displays widely at both large organised events and smaller home gatherings.

Bonfire night – or “Guy Fawkes night” marks the anniversary of the thwarting of the gunpowder plot on 5th November 1605. Fireworks have traditionally been used to celebrate this event for many years in the UK, both at large, organised public events and smaller home gatherings.

Festival fireworks – in the last 50 years, large, organised displays, often accompanied by music, have become popular to mark the start or finish of large public events, including the Edinburgh Festival and Tattoo.

Weddings – in recent years firework displays have become increasingly popular to mark the end of wedding celebrations, with some venues now offering a display as part of a package deal.

When fireworks are not used safely or with respect to the wider community they can cause a nuisance, distress and injury. There have been incidents of fireworks being used dangerously or causing harm, including isolated incidents of disorder and attacks on emergency service workers linked to fireworks; and a small number of incidents where members of the public have been injured by fireworks.

We would like to hear from you about how you currently use and enjoy fireworks.

In this document the word “use” means that you are actively involved in buying and setting off fireworks, and the word “enjoy” means that you watch fireworks as a spectator but do not buy or set off fireworks yourself.

Question 1. What is the main way you typically enjoy and experience fireworks?

- Attend a small private event with friends/family that is hosted by you or someone else
- Attend a locally organised event such as an event run by your community council or local organisations with less than 500 people attending
- Attend large public organised events with more than 500 people attending
- Do not attend firework events
- Other (please provide details).

Answer 1.

- Other – As an organization, the Council recognizes that fireworks used safely and responsibly, provide enjoyment to many of Edinburgh's citizens and visitors, and fireworks form an important part of celebratory events such as the Edinburgh Festival, Diwali, the Edinburgh Tattoo and Bonfire Night.

Question 2. Would you say that fireworks form an important part of celebration events for you?

- Yes
- No.

Answer 2.

- Yes – as mentioned in answer 1 above, the Council recognizes the contribution the safe use of fireworks makes to the different celebrations occurring across Edinburgh throughout the year.
- The Council further recognizes that the vast majority of Edinburgh residents enjoy fireworks responsibly as part of the annual Guy Fawkes night celebrations.

Question 3. Have you been affected by fireworks being used in an irresponsible or unsafe way?

- Yes (please provide details)
- No.

Answer 3.

- Yes – During Bonfire Night 2017, the misuse of fireworks caused significant damage to property in the East of Edinburgh and the Council condemns the reported acts of violence which took place in some parts of Edinburgh and the outrageous behaviour that resulted in injuries to a Police Officer and damage to police vehicles. The Council commends the resilience and bravery of emergency service personnel in respect of the unprecedented levels of unruly and shameful behaviour on Bonfire Night at a number of locations citywide. Accordingly, the Council welcomes the opportunity to contribute to this consultation and to working with both the Scottish and Westminster Governments to consider options for better control of the sale of fireworks to individuals. The Council further acknowledges motion S5M-08695 which was tabled to the Scottish Parliament and received cross party support, calling on

- (i) the UK Government to review the rules governing the sale of fireworks; and*
 - (ii) the Scottish Government and its partner agencies to investigate and address the antisocial use of unlicensed fireworks.*
- The Council recognizes the need for and right of residents to feel safe both in and outside their homes and works closely with partners to keep people safe. Following the disturbances, the Council created a multi-agency Community Improvement Partnership in January 2018 to work to reduce the levels of vandalism and antisocial behaviour and prevent incidents which cause injury to people and/or damage to property on and around Bonfire Night 2018. Overall, the dedicated and planned approach to Bonfire Night 2018 had a positive impact resulting in a fall in the instances of fireworks offences and antisocial behaviour.*

Part Two: Legislation and Regulation

Legislation regulates the sale and use of fireworks. There are controls on who can sell fireworks, which types are available to the public, who can buy and possess fireworks, how they must be stored, and where and when fireworks may be used.

Fireworks in Scotland are controlled by legislation covering areas such as consumer protection and explosives; environmental law; and animal welfare law.

Further detail on the controls and legislation surrounding fireworks sale and use is provided in the accompanying technical annex, which can be accessed at <https://consult.gov.scot/safer-communities/fireworks>.

Sale of Fireworks

Legislation on the sale and storage of fireworks is reserved to the UK Government. This means that the UK Government at Westminster is the only body that can change or pass laws on those issues. For most of the year fireworks can only be sold by licenced traders. Licencing the sale of fireworks is done by local authorities, and traders have to meet very strict criteria to receive a licence.

In the run up to New Year, Chinese New Year and Diwali, and for the three weeks before Bonfire Night, traders registered with their local authority to store fireworks do not require a specific sales licence. Instead they are required to register with the relevant local authority. Local authorities have no powers to refuse registration at these times.

It is illegal to sell outdoor fireworks to anyone who is less than 18 years old. It is illegal to sell indoor fireworks (such as sparklers) to anyone who is less than 16 years old.

Fireworks which make a noise of over 120 decibels when they are set off, or fireworks that require specialist knowledge to use safely, cannot be sold to the general public at any time. Fireworks associated with antisocial behaviour such as bangers, air bombs and jumping jacks are also banned at all times.

Legislation governing the sale of fireworks is reserved to the UK government, but we would like to hear your views on what you would like to see in Scotland:

Question 4. Do you think there should be more controls over the sale of fireworks?

- Yes (please tell us what controls you would like to see in place)
- No (please tell us why you do not feel more controls are needed).

Answer 4.

- Yes – The sale of fireworks is controlled at the current time with sales only to persons over 18. To control the sale of fireworks further a challenge 25 system could be introduced. This would replicate the regime for tobacco and alcohol requiring anyone who appears to be younger than 25 to produce ID before a sale. There could also be more controls on the selling of fireworks online as well as a media campaign highlighting the dangers of buying fireworks through social media.
- Similarly, in the interests of public safety, the Council would support exploring whether the classifications of fireworks should be reviewed to support safe and responsible use.

Question 5: What are your views on banning the sale of fireworks to the public in Scotland?

- Yes, I would welcome a ban on the sale of fireworks (please tell us why you would welcome a ban)
- No, I would not welcome a ban on the sale of fireworks (please tell us why you would not welcome a ban)
- Unsure.

Answer 5.

- No – the Council would not welcome the ban on the sale of fireworks as it may result in a black market. This may actually result in more fireworks getting into the hands of persons under the age of 18, an increase in antisocial behaviour, and the potential of further injuries from fireworks which may not meet the current standards for fireworks offered for sale.
- The Council seeks to adopt a measured approach and therefore would support exploring further whether measures should be introduced that would place tighter controls on the sale of fireworks, as opposed to the introduction of an outright ban.

Use of Fireworks

Legislation covering the use of fireworks in Scotland is devolved to the Scottish Parliament. This means that the Scottish Parliament can change or pass laws in relation to those issues as they apply to Scotland.

Restrictions are placed on when fireworks can be used. During most of the year fireworks can only be used between 7am and 11pm. On the 5 November fireworks can be used until midnight, and on the nights of Chinese New Year, Diwali and New Year's Eve fireworks can be used until 1am.

It is for each local authority to decide if it wishes to licence public firework displays under its Public Entertainment Licencing regime.

It is a criminal offence for anyone to throw, cast or fire any fireworks in or into any road or public place and this is enforced by Police Scotland.

Legislation governing the use of fireworks is the responsibility of the Scottish Government. We would like to hear your views on the current regulations around the use of fireworks:

Question 6. Do you think there should be more controls on how fireworks can be used in Scotland?

- Yes (please tell us what controls you would like to see in place)
- No (please tell us why not).

Answer 6.

- Yes - there should be a maximum quantity that can be held by one household. There should also be a further restriction on the time periods that fireworks can be bought. At the current time fireworks can be sold without a licence to sell fireworks for four designated periods with the longest being between the 15 October and the 10 November. This should be reduced and similar to the periods of sale for Diwali and Chinese New Year (on the date of the event and 3 days prior to it).
- Additionally, the licensing regime in Edinburgh requires organized displays to hold a Public Entertainment License; ensuring that independent checks are made by the local authority. A requirement for local authorities to have public displays as a licensable matter in their Public Entertainment Resolutions would further support the safe and responsible use of fireworks at organized displays.
- The Council supports encouraging organized and licensed community firework and bonfire events.
- The Council further recognizes that though restricting fireworks further may prevent incidents happening in the future, there is a wider need to address the antisocial behaviour that lies behind these incidents.

Part Three: Prevention and Community Involvement

Partnership Working and Prevention

Across Scotland, local partnerships which often include the local authority, Police Scotland, Scottish Fire and Rescue Service, Trading Standards and other community safety partners work together to ensure people and communities can enjoy fireworks safely. This happens particularly for large organised events and in preparation for bonfire night when fireworks are most likely to be used in our communities.

Depending on local circumstances, a range of approaches are often in place to prevent fireworks being misused and to target those who might be likely to misuse fireworks in and around bonfire night. This includes:

- Sharing intelligence among local partners about areas of high risk to prevent anti-social behaviour and increase public safety.
- Prevention and education activities to promote fire safety to the general public and school pupils; information packs to local groups planning to hold firework displays; inspections of premises who store and sell fireworks; and removing material that could be used for bonfires.

Question 7. What do you think could be done by national and local partners to further prevent the misuse of fireworks?

Answer 7.

- Working collaboratively with national and local partners to prioritise the safety of the public and emergency services staff, further supports prevention of fireworks misuse. The Council will continue to work closely with partners, ensuring that robust and co-ordinated plans are in place to address the potential for fireworks related violence, vandalism and disturbance, in particular around Bonfire Night. This includes a commitment to working with our emergency services colleagues to assist where practical in helping to identify those responsible and taking enforcement action against person(s) who engage in fireworks related violence and antisocial behaviour, and put others at risk of injury/death. The Council also supports the use of targeted diversionary activities around Bonfire Night to keep young people safe and discourage fireworks related antisocial behaviour.

Community Involvement

Enabling people to be involved in influencing decisions that affect their local community is important, and this equally applies to the issue of fireworks. Communities that are enabled to work together effectively, and in partnership with local partners, have the potential to identify more effective and sustainable solutions.

We are interested in your views about what more could be done to enable and encourage communities to be more involved in preventing fireworks being used inappropriately and to ensure they are enjoyed safely.

Question 8. What ways do you think communities could be involved in supporting the safe use of fireworks?

Local Examples of Practice. We would like to hear any examples of how your community is involved in organising or promoting the safe and responsible use of fireworks.

Answer 8.

- The Council supports employing a partnership approach to promoting the safe use of fireworks through co-ordinated communications activity in the lead up to Bonfire Night. This includes encouraging local communities to play an active role in promoting public safety supported by a targeted media (including social media), campaign to raise awareness of the dangers of misusing fireworks. The safe use of fireworks may also be promoted directly with relevant local community groups such as community councils and tenants/residents associations.
- Public displays and safe zones could also contribute to this work.
- Partnership activity carried out in Edinburgh in the lead up to Bonfire Night included partners delivering presentations to young people in high schools on the dangers of misusing fireworks, diversionary activities to keep young people safe during Bonfire Night, and joint visits to premises selling fireworks to ensure compliance regarding underage sales and fireworks storage.

Communication and Awareness Raising

National safety campaigns are run every year to encourage the safe use of fireworks.

The Scottish Fire and Rescue Service (SFRS), for example, run an annual campaign which aims to reduce rubbish and refuse fires, fires in derelict buildings, and fires set off deliberately because of anti-social behaviour. This is often supported by local partnerships who arrange amnesty days to collect bulk items that could be used for bonfires.

In 2018, SFRS developed and hosted a dedicated national webpage listing organised fireworks events across the country which were open to the public so that they could attend these and enjoy a firework display in safety -

<https://www.firescotland.gov.uk/your-safety/fireworks-safety.aspx>

Question 9. What do you think could be done to raise awareness of the risks of fireworks misuse among the public?

Answer 9.

- The continuing commitment of partners to co-ordinated and united campaigns highlighting the risks of fireworks misuse and promoting the safe and responsible use of fireworks, helps prioritise public safety. Additionally, educational safety presentations in schools, and increasing public support for fireworks safety campaigns through engaging with locally based community groups, may help promote the public safety message to a wider audience.
- Harnessing the support of local and national media for example, social media, radio and television, in highlighting the risks of fireworks misuse while promoting safe use of fireworks also contributes to prioritizing the public safety message.
- The Council commends those working in Police Scotland, the Scottish Fire and Rescue Service and other agencies for their commitment, bravery and professionalism in seeking to protect our local communities from harm.

Part Four: Animal Welfare

Legislation governing animal welfare is devolved to the Scottish Parliament. The Animal Health and Welfare (Scotland) Act 2006 protects and promotes the welfare of animals, and created a number of criminal offences to help protect animals from mistreatment. These offences cover a range of animal welfare issues, some of which carry a maximum penalty of up to 12 months imprisonment and/or a fine of up to £20,000.

These penalties can be applied to the offence of causing “unnecessary suffering” to an animal. This offence may be committed by anyone who knowingly causes unnecessary suffering to an animal, by either doing or not doing something, whether they are the keeper/owner of the animal or not.

Question 10. Do you think that there should be more controls to make sure animals are not caused unnecessary suffering because of the use of fireworks?

- Yes (please tell us what controls you would like to see in place)
- No (please tell us why you do not feel more controls are needed).

Local Examples of Practice. We would like to hear any examples of how you or your community acts to reduce the impact of fireworks on animals.

Answer 10.

- Yes – the Council supports a balanced approach to fireworks legislation and regulation; the additional controls the Council would support being explored further are mentioned in the responses to questions 4, 5 and 6 above.
- The introduction of low noise fireworks would have a greater impact with regards to easing the unnecessary suffering to animals.
- The safety and welfare of animals during Bonfire Night may be promoted as part of the wider co-ordinated partnership media campaign on firework safety. National and local media could also have a part to play in encouraging people to be mindful of the impact of fireworks on animals and recommending precautionary steps that can be taken to minimize the negative impact.

Responding to this Consultation

We are inviting responses to this consultation by Monday 13 May 2019.

Please respond to this consultation using the Scottish Government's consultation hub, Citizen Space (<http://consult.gov.scot>). Access and respond to this consultation online at <https://consult.gov.scot/safer-communities/fireworks>. You can save and return to your responses while the consultation is still open. Please ensure that consultation responses are submitted before the closing date of Monday 13 May 2019.

If you are unable to respond using our consultation hub, please complete the Respondent Information Form to:

Building Safer Communities Team

Next Steps in the Process

Where respondents have given permission for their response to be made public, and after we have checked that they contain no potentially defamatory material, responses will be made available to the public at <http://consult.gov.scot>. If you use the consultation hub to respond, you will receive a copy of your response via email.

Following the closing date, all responses will be analysed and considered along with any other available evidence to help us. Responses will be published where we have been given permission to do so. An analysis report will also be made available.

Comments and Complaints

If you have any comments about how this consultation exercise has been conducted, please send them to the contact address above or at FireworksConsultation@gov.scot.

Scottish Government Consultation Process

Consultation is an essential part of the policymaking process. It gives us the opportunity to consider your opinion and expertise on a proposed area of work.

You can find all our consultations online: <http://consult.gov.scot>. Each consultation details the issues under consideration, as well as a way for you to give us your views, either online, by email or by post.

Responses will be analysed and used as part of the decision making process, along with a range of other available information and evidence. We will publish a report of this analysis for every consultation. Depending on the nature of the consultation exercise the responses received may:

- indicate the need for policy development or review
- inform the development of a particular policy
- help decisions to be made between alternative policy proposals
- be used to finalise legislation before it is implemented.

While details of particular circumstances described in a response to a consultation exercise may usefully inform the policy process, consultation exercises cannot address individual concerns and comments, which should be directed to the relevant public body.
